

A HOPEFUL WORLD

by Joanna Wang

Grade 6, HHMS

There are problems in the world,
Problems that seem too big-
Too big to fix on our own.
Entirely too disastrous that it washes over us
In sadness.

There are people in the world
Who want to fix these problems with helpful actions.
These people are hopeful-
Hopeful that they can try their best,
And save our world.

Except these people and their actions are single pieces
In our giant puzzle of the world.
And these small pieces mean nothing
On their own,
And they cannot save anything.

I am hopeful
Because I am one of these people.
I want to help the world be a better place.
Because I know
That there are others who are fighting for peace, just like me.

And if we work together-
If we put our minds to it,
I know that these pieces-these actions-can find each other
And become the entire puzzle
That comes together to save the world.
