

I Can Change WE

Mankind made language; however, it is people who communicate it.

No other word has the power of the pronoun, I.

A single letter, a single syllable, and a single word... but with no single meaning.

I is not a singular thing; instead, I is a universe of things.

I is diverse, unique, and personal, like each of us.

I am tall... I am Brazilian... I am American... I am silly... I am autistic... I am an avid writer... I am so many things...

Mostly though, I is always changing.

The world may need the collective WE, in order to succeed.

But the singular I still matters, because without it, WE cannot change.

I feel ready to start to make change.

I feel the power of others changing around me.

I matter because I can change WE.
